

Searching for GWD

A man and two women emerged from a rented car
Under a boiling Kansas sun,
Wandered through Caney Cemetery,
Searching for signs of George Washington Davis.
They came to a marker bearing green and orange moss.
Covering faint lines with paper,
They rub its face with lead pencil,
To evoke the only remaining words:
GONE, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN.